Door supervisor who refused to wear his SIA licence receives a criminal conviction and loses his licence

Door supervisor, Warren Steele, has had his licence revoked following a conviction, for failing to display his licence whilst on duty. Steele was sentenced on 15 September 2017, at Chester Magistrates Court.

Steele, a head door supervisor, was caught on two occasions failing to display his licence when he was working at a bar near Chester. When our investigators confronted Steele, he was less than co-operative.

This is an important condition, as it demonstrates to the public that the door supervisors they see at bars and clubs are properly licensed and regulated. We revoked Steele's licence as a result of his non-compliance.
